Location & Situation

For those looking to operate a small farm or equine facility in a rural and accessible Caithness setting, with a home to turn into your own and within easy reach of everyday services, Newfield Farm could be the perfect opportunity.

Newfield Farm is situated just two miles to the west of the seaside town of Wick, situated on the spectacular east coast and formerly the County town of the historic county of Caithness. Wick, formerly one of Europe's largest fishing ports, is a hive of activity in the County and boasts a range of services, including shops, schools, hospitality venues and more. The town also plays host once every two years to the well-renowned Caithness Show, a fantastic community event showcasing the best that Caithness agriculture has to offer.

Caithness is a remote and captivating region renowned for its expansive landscapes, dramatic coastline and remarkable sense of space. The County combines fertile farmland and open moorland with rugged cliffs, sandy beaches, lochs and wide, uninterrupted skies, creating an exceptional setting for those seeking a rural lifestyle away from the pressures of modern life. Steeped in history, the County is home to ancient archaeological sites, castles and traditional Highland communities, while its proximity to the North Sea gives the landscape a distinctive character.

Agriculture plays a key role in the local Caithness economy and boasts many services, businesses and contractors. There is a local livestock auction mart at Quoybrae (Caithness Livestock Centre) which holds regular shows and sales throughout the calendar year. Local and national livestock haulage is easily supplied in the area. Equestrian interests are also well served, with numerous small-scale facilities situated throughout the County.

As well as several local bus services, rail connections are available in Wick and Thurso for onward travel to Inverness, the Capital of the Highlands, and beyond. Ferry connections to Orkney are available at Scrabster and Gills Bay, with frequent flight connections to Aberdeen and Glasgow also available from Wick John O'Groats Airport.

Newfield Farm - Land and Buildings

About 59 acres of land with a useful range of outbuildings including extensive stabling and storage

Land

The IACS registered land at Newfield Farm is situated to the north of the farmhouse and buildings, being split into 10 field parcels and extending to 23.87 hectares (58.98 acres) or thereby. The land slopes gently towards the railway line and the Wick River, and ranges from approximately 3 metres to 11 metres above sea level. The land is classified as Grade 3(2) by the James Hutton Institute.

The productive land to the south of the railway line has been used to grow Spring Barley and Spring Oats in the past as well as being in grass and cut for hay or silage to support the farm. The land to the north of the railway line has been retained as permanent pasture and rough grazings, making it well-suited for grazing livestock or as interesting hacking routes for those with equine interests.

Newfield Farm was formerly run as an equestrian livery centre alongside the modest farming operation. The farm is registered with SGRPID, with a farm code of 73/283/0208. In addition, a generous 60 metre x 20 metre enclosed sand exercise arena is situated a short distance to the north-east of the farm buildings.

Newfield Farmhouse

Traditional Caithness farmhouse ready to be transformed - approx. floor area 104 sq.m

Newfield Farmhouse is a typical traditional Caithness one-and-a-half-storey farmhouse of stone construction with a tiled roof. With a modest flat-roofed extension to the rear of the property, the accommodation formerly comprised three bedrooms, living room and dining kitchen with a family bathroom and front entrance porch. There is also a lean-to on the eastern end of the house, comprising a compact cloakroom.

This bright, south-facing property has already been stripped out internally revealing timber frames and rafters within the stone envelope, allowing one to appreciate the space the property offers. With careful and sympathetic design, this could make for a substantial and charming family home.

Subject to obtaining the necessary and relevant Local Authority Consents, Newfield Farmhouse could be easily extended to increase its floor area and accommodation and make the most of it's idyllic south-facing aspect.

Externally, the property features generous garden lawn space to the front of the dwellinghouse, as well as a modest, enclosed walled garden with beautiful decorative cast iron railings.

Also included are two useful storage units/cabins which have been fitted with power and water connections.
